Illustrated Short Stories – Carlsen's illustrated short stories is a new and exciting series of books for YA readers. The 'anti-didactic' format of the series emphasizes the combination of short texts and extensive use of illustrations; all brought to the reader by some of Denmark's most talented authors and illustrators. The stories have one thing in common: they all deal with life changing moments.

Mowgli – A girl lives in the dark behind a locked door. She has never seen the sky, the sun or the stars. But she is not alone. Her mother is there as well, and Mum is fast, strong, brave – and also excellent at playing hide and seek around and under their bunk. Through the bars of the metal grating, the girl can hear someone singing ...

Hate-Don't-Hate – Brothers Kim and Kenneth are both good at boxing. Dad is good at cheering when they are in the ring. But that doesn't stop Kim hating everything. Maybe because his mother has died. Or maybe because his dad hates the fact he likes to write. But there must be something Kim can love ...?

As Good As New – Maryam means 'virtuous' in Arabic. And Maryam knows the importance of being virtuous. You have to watch your step – especially around boys. But what do you do when you meet someone like Pelle, whose striking blue eyes are like a planet with the greatest G-Force in the whole universe?

A new and very promising series of illustrated short stories for the YA audience. It hardly gets any better than this.
